Q. No. 2) Fill in the blank: _____ was chosen by the European Union as its headquarters.

Ans. Brussels.

Q. No. 3) How many people speak French and Dutch in the capital city of Brussels?

Ans. 80% French and 20% Dutch speaking.

Q. No. 4) Study the map thoroughly and mention the languages that are dominantly spoken in Belgium.

Ans. The languages that are dominantly spoken in Belgium are Dutch and French.

Q. No. 5) What is the ethnic composition of Sri Lanka?

Ans. The Sinhala speakers are 74% and Tamil speakers are 18% and among Tamils, there are two subgroups – Sri Lankan Tamils and Indian Tamils.

Q. No. 6) “Sharing of powers makes a country more powerful and united.” Do you agree with this statement and why?

Or,

“Power sharing is the very spirit of democracy.” Justify this statement with three suitable points.

Or,

How far do you agree with the statement that power sharing is keeping with the “Spirit” of democracy?

Ans. Power sharing keeps up with the ‘Spirit’ of Democracy as:

- Power sharing ensures that all people have a stake in government.
- Power sharing ensures maximum participation. It upholds the concept of people’s rule. It always brings better outcomes in democracy. It ensures that people are consulted on how they are to be governed.
- Power sharing accommodates diverse groups. It helps to reduce the possibility of conflict between social groups.

Q. No. 7) Explain any three consequences of the majoritarian policies adopted by the Sri Lankan government.

Ans. Consequences of majoritarian policies adopted by the Sri Lankan Government:

- Tamils felt the government was not sensitive to the Tamil language and culture.
- Tamils felt discriminated against in jobs and education.
- Tamils felt the government was practicing religious discrimination.
- Relations between Tamils and Sinhalese became strained.
- Several political organizations were formed demanding an independent Tamil Eelam (state) in the northern and eastern parts of Sri Lanka.
- The distrust between the two communities turned into a civil war, in which, thousands of people from both communities were killed.
- It caused a terrible setback to the social, cultural, and economic life of the country.

Q. No. 8) Differentiate between the horizontal and vertical division of powers.

Or,

Describe horizontal and vertical power sharing in modern democracies.

Ans.

Horizontal Division of Power	Vertical Division of Power
1. Horizontal Division of Power is a power-sharing arrangement in which power is shared among different organs of government such as the executive, legislative, and judiciary.	1. In the vertical division of power, power is shared among governments at different levels like union, state, and local levels of government i.e., it involves higher and lower levels of government.
2. In the horizontal division of power, different organs of government exercise different powers.	2. In the vertical division of power, the constitution clearly lays down the power of different levels of government.
3. Horizontal distribution specifies the concept of checks and balances in order to	3. There is no concept of checks and balances because powers are clearly given by the check the exercise of unlimited powers of the organs.

constitution from the higher level to the lower level.

Q. No. 9) Which three demands of the Sri Lankan Tamil accepted and met, could have settled the ethnic conflict in Sri Lanka for good? Explain.

Ans. Demands of the Tamils:

- Recognition of Tamil as an official language.
- Equal opportunities for Tamils in government jobs and educational institutions.
- Provincial autonomy for Tamil-dominated provinces.

Q. No. 10) What is power sharing? Give reasons why power sharing is desirable.

Or,

What is power sharing? Why power sharing is desirable? Explain by giving prudential and moral reasons.

Ans. When the power does not rest with any one organ of the state rather it is shared among different levels/organs of the government it is called power sharing.

Power sharing is desirable in democracy because:

i. Prudential reasons:

- It helps to reduce the possibility of conflict between social groups.
- Reducing conflict between social groups ensures the stability of political order.
- It promotes the unity of the nation.

ii. Moral reasons:

- Power sharing is the very spirit of democracy. A democratic rule involves sharing power with those affected by its exercise and who have to live with its effect.
- People have a right to be consulted on how they are to be governed.
- Power sharing helps in producing a legitimate government where citizens through participation acquire a stake in the system.

Q. No. 11) Read the passage, observe the image given below, and answer the questions that follow.

The cartoon above refers to the problems of running Germany's grand coalition government that includes the country's two major parties, namely the Christian Democratic Union and the Social Democratic Party. The two parties are rivals to each other. They had to form a coalition government because neither of them got a clear majority of seats on their own in the 2005 elections. They take divergent positions on several policy matters but jointly run the government.

- a. Which disadvantage of coalition governments is the image highlighting?
- b. Why did the rival parties choose to make a coalition despite being rivals?
- c. How does a democratic system, at times, cause such a challenge?

Ans. a. A coalition government may not agree on policy decisions that can affect a country's progress.

b. The government at the center enforces policy decisions that affect the entire country including the people who support each party, thus the rivals preferred to make a coalition.

c. Democracy enables people to vote for their chosen representatives. In the absence of a clear majority, political parties may form a coalition.

Q. No. 12) Bring out any two sharp contrasts between Belgium and Sri Lankan democracies.

Ans. Sri Lanka and Belgium are both democratic countries yet have very diverse social setups.

Both countries have adopted very different approaches when it comes to power-sharing.

- Belgium adopted the policy of accommodation of social and ethnic divisions. On the other hand, Sri Lanka also adopted a democratic system but followed majoritarian policies.
- Under the Belgium model of democracy, power was shared among two ethnic groups. Sri Lanka favored the interests of the majority Sinhala community.
- In Belgium, both groups had an equal share in the working of government but in Sri Lanka, the minority community was isolated.
- To maintain political stability and unity, equal representation was provided to both groups. Apart from that, the community government of both ethnic groups also existed at the local level. Sri Lanka, however, had no such arrangement.
- Belgium's constitution was amended four times before arriving at a final draft to prevent civil strife. In Sri Lanka, majoritarianism led to civil war for twenty long years.

Q. No. 13) What are the advantages of horizontal power-sharing? Explain with an example.

Ans. The advantages of horizontal power-sharing are:

- The power is shared among different organs of government equally.

- Horizontal power-sharing places all the organs of the government i.e., legislature, executive, and judiciary at the same level.
- Under this kind of power-sharing no organ can exercise unlimited powers.
- That is why this system is also known as the system of checks and balances.
- Example: in India, though the ministers and government officials exercise power, they are responsible to the parliament or state legislatures. Similarly, although the judges are appointed by the executive they can check the functioning of the executive or laws made by the legislatures.

Q. No. 14) Describe any three majoritarian measures adopted by the Sri Lankan Government to establish Sinhala supremacy.

Or,

Describe any three provisions of the Act which was passed in Sri Lanka in 1956 to establish Sinhala supremacy.

Or,

Why did Sri Lankan Tamils feel alienated?

Ans. Sri Lankan Tamils felt alienated because:

- The government adopted majoritarian measures to establish Sinhala supremacy. In 1956, an Act was passed to recognize Sinhala as the only official language thus disregarding Tamil.
- The government followed preferential politics that favored Sinhala applicants for university positions and government jobs.
- A new Constitution stipulated that the state shall protect and foster Buddhism.

Q. No. 15) Describe the power-sharing arrangement made by Belgium.

Or,

Explain any three elements of the Belgium model of power sharing.

Or,

What changes were done to the constitution of Belgium?

Ans. Some of the elements of the Belgium model are:

- The number of Dutch and French-speaking ministers shall be equal in the central government.
- Some special laws required the support of the majority of members from each linguistic group.
- The state governments are not subordinate to the central government.
- Brussels has a separate government in which both communities have equal representation.
- Apart from the central and state government, there is a third kind of government called 'community government'. Community government is elected by people belonging to one language community – Dutch, French, and German-speaking.

Q. No. 16) Explain the major forms of power sharing in modern democracies.

Ans. The major forms of power sharing in modern democracies are:

- Power sharing among the different organs of government. (Horizontal power sharing).
- Power sharing among governments at different levels.
- Power sharing among different social groups.
- Power sharing among political parties, pressure groups, and movements.

- In a democracy, we find interest groups such as businessmen, farmers, and industrial workers.

Q. No. 17) Here are some examples of power sharing. Which of the four types of power-sharing do these represent? Who is sharing power with whom?

- The Bombay High Court ordered the Maharashtra state government to immediately take action and improve living conditions for the 2,000-odd children at seven children's homes in Mumbai.
- The government of Ontario state in Canada has agreed to a land claim settlement with the aboriginal community. The Minister responsible for Native Affairs announced that the government will work with aboriginal people in a spirit of mutual respect and cooperation.
- Russia's two influential political parties, the Union of Right Forces and the Liberal Yabloko Movement agreed to unite their organizations into a strong right-wing coalition. They propose to have a common list of candidates in the next parliamentary elections.
- The finance ministers of various states in Nigeria got together and demanded that the federal government declare its sources of income. They also wanted to know the formula by which the revenue is distributed to various state governments.

Ans.

- Here is horizontal power sharing between different organs of the government placed at the same level – the Judiciary and the State legislative assembly in this case.
- Here power is shared among different social and ethnic groups.
- This power-sharing arrangement is between 2 political parties. If the alliance is elected, they form a coalition government and share power.
- This is the vertical form of power sharing. Power is shared between the union government and the state.

Q. No. 2) Define the term federalism.

Ans. Federalism is a system of government in which the power is divided between a central authority and various constituent units of the country. Both these levels of government, the central and the state, enjoy their powers independently of each other.

Q. No. 3) How is a federal government different from a unitary form of government? Why are federations preferred these days?

Or,

Distinguish between the Unitary and Federal systems of government.

Ans.

Unitary Government	Federal Government
i. It has only one level of government.	i. It has two or more levels of government.
ii. The sub-units are subordinate to the center.	ii. The central government cannot order the state government to do something.
iii. The sub-units are answerable to the central government.	iii. The sub-units are not answerable to the central government. Both are separately answerable to the people.

A federation is preferred because:

- It helps in making administration effective and efficient.
- It helps to accommodate all diverse groups.

Q. No. 4) State the main features of Federalism.

Ans. The main features of Federalism are:

- There are two or more levels of government.
- Different tiers of government govern the same citizens, but each tier has its own jurisdiction in specific matters of legislation, taxation, and administration.
- The powers and functions of each tier of government are specified and guaranteed by Constitution.
- The fundamental provisions of the Constitution cannot be unilaterally changed by one level of government. Such changes require the consent of both levels of government.
- Sources of revenue between different levels are specified by the Constitution.
- Courts have the power to interpret the Constitution and the powers of different levels of government. The highest court acts as an umpire if disputes arise between different levels of government in the exercise of their respective powers.

Q. No. 5) Differentiate between the ‘Coming Together Federation’ and ‘Holding Together Federation’ with examples.

Ans.

Coming Together Federation	Holding Together Federation
-----------------------------------	------------------------------------

i. 'Coming Together Federations' are formed when independent states come together to form a bigger state.	i. 'Holding Together Federations' are formed when a large country decides to divide itself into sub-units.
ii. The state governments are strong in comparison to the central government.	ii. The central government is strong in comparison to the state government.
iii. All state governments have equal power.	iii. Very often the state governments have unequal powers.
iv. Example: the USA, Switzerland, and Australia.	iv. Example: India, Spain, and Belgium.

Q. No. 6) Which provisions of Indian Constitution make India a full-fledged federation?
Or,

Mention any five main features which make India a federal country.

Ans. The following are the five provisions that make India a federal country:

- Two or more levels of government: India has three levels of government (Centre, State, and Local levels).
- Three lists: The powers are divided between the Centre and the States by three lists – Union list, State list, and Concurrent list.
- Rigid Constitution: The fundamental provisions of the Constitution cannot be unilaterally changed by one level of government. Such changes require the consent of both levels of government.
- Financial Autonomy: The revenue sources of both the Centre and States have been clearly defined, which ensures financial autonomy to both the Centre and the State.
- Independent Judiciary: The Supreme Court has been given the power to settle disputes between different levels of government.

Q. No. 7) Explain the process of power sharing among different organs of the government in India.

Or,

Describe the three-fold distribution of legislative powers between the Union Government and the State Governments. Who can make laws on the subjects which are not covered under these lists and what name has been given to such subjects?

Or,

Describe the division of powers between the Central and the State Governments in India.

Ans. The Constitution provided a threefold distribution of legislative powers – Union List, State List, and Concurrent List. Thus it contains three lists:

- Union List includes subjects of national importance like foreign affairs, defense, etc. The Union Government alone can make laws on these subjects.
- State List contains subjects of state and local importance like police, trade, etc. The State Government alone can make laws on subjects mentioned in this list.
- The concurrent List includes subjects of common interest like education, forests, agriculture, etc. Both the Union and the State Governments can make laws on the subject mentioned in this list. In case of a dispute, the law made by the Union government will prevail.

The subjects which are not covered under these lists or subjects like computer software that came up after the constitution was made are called “Residuary subjects”. According to our constitution, the Union Government has the power to legislate on these subjects.

Q. No. 8) “Indian Constitution has a unitary bias.” Support the statement with examples.

Ans.

- The power-sharing arrangement between the union and the state given in the Constitution of India clearly distributes power between the two. In this sense, it is federal but the system becomes unitary when the residuary power rests with the union.
- The Constitution did not use the word ‘Federation’ but it has the division of powers into a three-tier system of the central government, the state government, and the local governments.
- Each level of the government has its own jurisdiction to legislate. But we have a centralized federation in which the Union government carries more powers than the state governments. The Union government has 97 subjects, whereas State, as well as Concurrent lists, have less number of subjects.

Q. No. 9) 'Independence of the Judiciary is the key to the success of federalism.' Examine the statement.

Ans.

- The judiciary with the Supreme Court at the apex is the sole interpreter of the Indian Constitution.
- It plays a pivotal role in overseeing the implementation of constitutional provisions and procedures.
- In case of any dispute about the division of powers, the High Courts and the Supreme Court make a decision.

Q. No. 10) Why has federalism succeeded in India? Which were the policies adopted by India that ensured this success? Explain.

Ans. The success of federalism in India can be attributed to the nature of democratic politics in our country. This ensured that the spirit of federalism, respect for diversity, and desire for living together became shared ideals in our country.

The policies adopted by India that ensured this success are:

- Linguistic states: Many old states have vanished and many new states have been created. Areas, boundaries, and names of the states have been changed. This was done to ensure that people who spoke the same language lived in the same state. Some states were created to recognize differences based on culture, ethnicity, or geography.
- Language policy: Indian constitution did not give the status of national language to any one language. Hindi was identified as the official language. Besides Hindi, there are 21 other languages recognized as Scheduled Languages by the Constitution. States too have their own official languages.
- Centre-State relations: Restructuring Centre-State relations have strengthened federalism in practice. After 1990, there was a rise of many regional political parties and it was the era of coalition governments at the center. This led to a new culture of power sharing and respect for the autonomy of state governments.

- Decentralization: In 1992, the Constitution was amended to make the third tier of democracy more powerful and effective. The local government includes Panchayats in villages and municipalities in urban areas.

Q. No. 11) Write a brief note on the language policy adopted in India.

Or,

Our Constitution has taken a number of measures to safeguard different languages.

Explain.

Ans. Language Policy adopted in India:

- No language was given the status of national language by our constitution. Hindi was identified as the official language. But only about 40% of Indians have Hindi as their mother tongue.
- Besides Hindi, there are 21 other languages recognized as Scheduled languages by the Constitution. A candidate in any examination conducted for the central government position may opt to take the examination in any of these languages.
- States have their own official language and all government work takes place in the official language of the state.

Q. No. 12) What is decentralization in democracy? What are the advantages of decentralization in democracy?

Ans. Decentralization: When power is taken away from central and state government and given to local government it is called decentralization.

The advantages of decentralization in a democracy are:

- The basic idea behind decentralization is that there are a large number of problems and issues which are best settled at the local level. People have better knowledge of problems in their localities.
- They know better where to spend money and how to manage things efficiently.
- Besides, at the local level, it is possible for people to directly participate in decision-making. This helps to inculcate a habit of democratic participation.

Q. No. 13) Explain the provisions that have been made towards decentralization in India after the Constitutional Amendment in 1992.

Or,

How has the third tier of government in our country been made more effective and powerful by the Constitutional Amendment of 1992?

Ans. Major steps were taken by Indian Government toward decentralization in 1992:

- Constitution mandate to hold regular elections for local government bodies.
- Reservation of seats in the elected bodies and the executive heads of these institutions for the Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, and other Backward Classes.
- Reservation of at least one-third of all positions for women.
- Creation of an independent institution called the State Election Commission in each state to conduct panchayat and municipal elections.
- The state governments are required to share some powers and revenue with local government bodies.

Q. No. 14) What is a Gram Sabha? Write the functions of a Gram Sabha.

Ans. Gram Sabha: All the voters in a village constitute a Gram Sabha.

Functions of a Gram Sabha:

- To approve the annual budget of the Gram Panchayat.

- To review the performance of the Gram Panchayat.
- To elect the members of the Gram Panchayat.

Q. No. 15) “Local governments have made a significant impact on Indian democracy. At the same time, there are many difficulties.” Explain.

Ans. Impact of local self-government on Indian democracy:

- Constitutional status for local government has helped to deepen democracy in our country.
- It has increased women’s representation and voice in our democracy.

Difficulties:

- Elections are not held regularly and enthusiastically.
- Gram Sabhas are not held regularly.
- Most state governments have not transferred significant powers to the local governments.
- Local governments are not given adequate resources.

Q. No. 2) What is the state religion of Sri Lanka?

Ans. Buddhism.

Q. No. 3) At which level of government in India 1/3rd of seats are reserved for women?

Ans. Local Self Government bodies (Panchayats and Municipalities).

Q. No. 4) Name three important leaders who worked for the elimination of caste inequalities in India.

Ans.

4. Jotiba Phule
5. Mahatma Gandhi
6. Dr. B. R. Ambedkar.

Q. No. 5) Define a Feminist?

Ans. A person who believes in equal rights and opportunities for all human beings.

Q. No. 6) What was the Feminist movement? Explain the political demands of the Feminist Movement in India.

Ans. Feminist Movement was a radical movement that demanded equality for women in personal and family life apart from politics, society, and the educational field.

The political demands of the Feminist Movements in India are-

- More women representatives in local government.
- More political representatives for women by having elected women representatives.
- Reserving at least 1/3rd of the seats in Lok Sabha and Legislative Assemblies for women.

Q. No. 7) What is the basis of gender division in society?

Ans. Gender division is based on social expectations and stereotypes.

Q. No. 8) The _____ includes those communities that led a secluded life usually in hills, and forests, and did not interact much with the rest of the society.

Ans. Scheduled tribes.

Q. No. 9) Gandhiji believed that politics must be guided by the ethics drawn from different _____.

Ans. Religion.

Q. No. 10) Social divisions based on _____ are peculiar to India.

Ans. Castes.

Q. No. 11) _____ division is a form of social division seen everywhere but is rarely recognized.

Ans. Gender.

Q. No. 12) What do you mean by the sexual division of labor?

Ans. It is a system in which all work inside the home is either done by the women of the family or organized by them through the domestic helpers.

Q. No. 13) Shruti performed a web search for 'Teacher' and found that 80% of the images had women, while a search for 'Pilot' mainly showed men. Discuss how these web search results reflect societal perceptions and the sexual division of labor. Explain with an example.

Ans.

- The over-representation of women as teachers and men as pilots reinforces traditional notions of job roles. The role of teaching is considered a caregiving job suitable for women while the role of pilot is regarded as a physically and mentally demanding job ideal for men.
- Similarly, the job of a nurse is associated more with women and the job of an engineer is associated with men. These trends represent social perceptions and perpetuate the sexual division of labor.

Q. No. 14) Elaborate on the political representation of women in India.

Or,

What is the status of women's representation in India's legislative bodies?

Ans. Political representation of women in India:

- In India, the proportion of women in the legislature has been very low.
- Central Legislature: The percentage of elected women members in Lok Sabha has touched 14.36 % of its total strength for the first time in 2019.
- State Legislature: Less than 5% of its total strength is women.
- Local Government: 1/3rd of the seats are reserved for women in Panchayats and Municipalities.
- India is among the bottom group of nations in the world, in this aspect.
- Women's organizations and activists have been demanding a reservation of at least 1/3rd of seats in Lok Sabha and State Assemblies. But the Women's Reservation Bill has not been passed.

Q. No. 15) How are religious differences expressed in politics?

Ans.

- Gandhiji used to say that religion can never be separated from politics. He believed that politics must be guided by ethics drawn from religion.
- Human rights groups in our country have argued that most of the victims of communal riots in our country are people from religious minorities. They have demanded that the government take special steps to protect religious minorities.
- The women's movement has argued that family laws of all religions discriminate against women. So they have demanded that the government should change these laws to make them more equitable.

Q. No. 16) What are the various ways in which women in India face disadvantage, discrimination, and oppression?

Ans.

- The literacy rate among women is only 54 % compared to 76 % among men as many parents prefer to spend their resources only on sons.
- The proportion of women in highly paid and valued jobs is very low.
- The Equal Wages Act provides that equal wages should be paid for equal work. However, in many areas of work like sports, cinema, agriculture, and factories, women are paid less than men for the same work.
- Girl children are aborted before being born as many parents prefer to have sons rather than daughters. Such sex-selective abortion has led to a decline in the child-sex ratio in the country to merely 919.
- Women face various kinds of harassment, exploitation, and violence inside as well as outside their homes in both rural and urban areas.

Q. No. 17) 'Communalism can take various forms in politics.' Explain.

Ans.

- The most common expression of communalism is in everyday beliefs. These involve religious prejudices, stereotypes of religious communities, etc.
- A communal mind often leads to a quest for political dominance of one's own religious community.
- Political mobilization on religious lines involves the use of sacred symbols, religious leaders, and emotional appeal to bring the followers of one religion together in the political arena.
- Sometimes communalism takes its ugly form of communal violence, riots, and massacre.

Q. No. 18) How can the relationship between politics and religion be beneficial and problematic at the same time? Explain.

Ans. The beneficial influence of religion:

- It can make politics value-based.
- Religious communities can politically express their needs and interests.
- Political authority can monitor all religious discrimination and oppression.

Problematic influence of religion:

- Political parties will try to make political gains by pitting one group against another.
- State power may be used to establish the domination of one religious group over another.
- Communalism always leads to violence and riots.
- It can disintegrate a country.
- It distorts the secular values of the country.

Q. No. 19) Why is communal thinking flawed?

Ans.

- People of one religion do not have the same interests and aspirations.
- There are many voices inside every community. All these voices have a right to be heard.
- Therefore, any attempt to bring all followers of one religion together in a context other than religion is bound to suppress many voices within that community.

Q. No. 20) Mention the constitutional provisions that make India a secular state.

Ans. The constitutional provisions that make India a 'secular state' are as follows:

- There is no official religion in the Indian state.
- Our constitution does not give a special status to any religion.
- It provides all individuals and communities the freedom to profess, practice, and propagate any religion, or not to follow any.
- The Constitution prohibits discrimination on the grounds of religion.
- It allows the state to intervene in matters of religion in order to ensure equality within religion to ensure equality within religious communities.

(*Here 'state' means 'Indian Government')

Q. No. 21) What are the various forms that caste takes in politics?

Ans.

- When parties choose candidates in elections, they keep in mind the caste composition of the electorate.
- Political parties and candidates in elections make appeals to caste sentiments to muster support.
- Universal adult franchise and the principle of one-person-one-vote compelled political leaders to gear up for the task of mobilizing and securing political support.

Q. No. 22) The focus on caste in politics can sometimes give an impression that elections are all about caste and nothing else. Do you agree? Explain.

Ans. No, this is not true.

- No parliamentary constituency in the country has a clear majority of one single caste. So, every candidate and party needs to win the confidence of more than one caste and community to win elections.
- No party wins the votes of all the voters of a caste or community.
- Many political parties may put up candidates from the same caste. Some voters have more than one candidate from their caste while many voters have no candidate from their caste.
- The ruling party and the sitting MP or MLA frequently lose elections in our country. That could not have happened if all castes and communities were frozen in their political preferences.

Q. No. 23) 'Caste has not still disappeared from contemporary India.' Write any three examples to justify the statement.

Ans.

1. Even now most people marry within their own caste or tribe.
2. Untouchability has not ended completely, despite constitutional prohibition.
3. The effects of centuries of advantages and disadvantages continue to be felt today. The caste groups that had access to education under the old system have done very well in acquiring modern education as well. Those groups that did not have access to education or were prohibited from acquiring it have naturally lagged behind.

Q. No. 24) 'It is not politics that gets caste-ridden, it is the caste that gets politicized.' Explain.

Ans.

- Each caste group tries to become bigger by incorporating within it neighboring castes or sub-castes that were earlier excluded from it.
- Various caste groups are required to enter into a coalition with other castes or communities.

- New kinds of caste groups have come up in the political arena like ‘backward’ and ‘forward’ caste groups.

Q. No. 25) How have caste and the caste system undergone changes in modern India?

Or,

Explain the socio-economic changes responsible for breaking down the old notion of caste hierarchy in India.

Ans.

- Social reformers like Jotiba Phule, Mahatma Gandhi, and Periyar Ramaswamy Naicker have carried out movements to end caste inequalities.
- Economic development and urbanization have broken caste hierarchies in India.
- Growth of literacy and education, as well as occupational mobility, have also changed the mindset of people towards caste.
- The Constitution of India prohibits caste-based discrimination.
- Practicing untouchability is a punishable offense in India.

Q. No. 26) What are some negative aspects of caste in politics?

Ans.

- Caste politics lead to tension and violence.
- Politics based on caste identity alone is not a healthy feature in a democracy.
- It can divert attention from other pressing issues like poverty, development, corruption, etc.

Q. No. 2) What is a political party? What are the main components of political parties?

Ans. Political party: A political party is a group of people who come together to contest elections and hold power in the government. They agree on some policies and programs for society with a view to promoting the collective good. They try to persuade people as to why their policies are better than others and seek to implement these policies by winning popular support through elections.

The main components of political parties are:

- The leaders
- The active members, and
- The followers.

Q. No. 3) Give one special feature that distinguishes a pressure group from a political party.

Ans. One special feature that distinguishes a pressure group from a political party is that pressure groups do not seek to get into power, while political parties do.

Q. No. 4) Examine the role of Political Parties in a democratic country.

Or,

“Modern democracies cannot exist without political parties.” Evaluate the statement with the help of relevant arguments.

Or,

Political parties fill political offices and exercise political power. But they do this by performing a series of important functions. Explain any five of them.

Ans. Functions of a political party:

- Parties contest elections.
- Parties put forward different policies and programs and the voters choose from them.
- Parties play a decisive role in making laws for a country.
- Parties form and run governments.
- Those parties that lose in the elections play the role of opposition to the parties in power, by voicing different views and criticizing the government for its failures or wrong policies.
- Parties shape public opinion. They raise and highlight issues.
- Parties provide people access to government machinery and welfare schemes implemented by governments.

Q. No. 5) Explain the functions of the opposition parties.

Ans. Functions of the opposition parties:

- They oppose the government by voicing different views.
- They criticize the government for its failure and wrong policies.
- They mobilize opposition to the government.

- Opposition parties safeguard the liberty and rights of people by monitoring the activities of the ruling party.
- It keeps a check on the dictatorial behavior of the ruling party.

Q. No. 6) How do political parties shape public opinion?

Ans. Political parties shape public opinion in the following ways:

- They raise and highlight issues.
- They form pressure groups as an extension.
- They launch movements for the resolution of problems faced by the people.
- Often, public opinion is shaped by the stand taken by political parties.

Q. No. 7) The rise of political parties is directly linked to the emergence of representative democracy. Justify the statement.

Ans.

- As societies become large and complex, they need some agency to get different views on various issues and to present this to the government.
- They need some way to bring various representatives together so that a responsible government could be formed.
- They need a mechanism to support or restrain the government, make policies, and justify or oppose them.
- Political parties fulfill these needs that every representative government has.

Thus, political parties are a necessary condition for democracy.

Q. No. 8) Differentiate between one-party and two-party systems.

Ans.

One-Party System	Two-Party System
i. Countries, where only one party is allowed to control and run the government are called one-party systems.	i. Countries where only two main parties contest elections are called two-party systems.
ii. For example in China only Communist Party is allowed to rule.	ii. For example - the United States of America and the United Kingdom are examples of a two-party system.
iii. Not a democratic option.	iii. It is a democratic option.

Q. No. 9) Why is one party political system not considered a good option in a democratic system?

Ans. A one-party system is not considered a good option in a democratic system because voters are not offered any choice at the time of voting. This is not a democratic option. Any democratic system must allow at least two parties to compete in elections and provide a fair chance for the competing parties to come to power.

Q. No. 10) What is a multiparty system? Give reasons why the multi-party system has evolved in India.

Ans. Multi-party system: If several parties compete for power, and more than two parties have a reasonable chance of coming to power either on their own strength or in alliance with others, we call it a multiparty system.

The multi-party system evolved in India because:

- India is blessed with tremendous social and geographical diversity. This diversity cannot be easily accommodated by two or three political parties.
- Because of the multiparty system, a variety of interests and opinions enjoy political representation.

Q. No. 11) In a hypothetical democratic nation with a population that is religiously homogenous, should there still be multiple political parties? Justify your stance in about 40 words.

Ans. Yes, because despite a religiously homogenous population, having multiple political parties

- helps represent diverse political perspectives
- helps in policy formation
- helps avoid authoritarianism
- provides an alternative to the voters

Q. No. 12) Analyse the role of a multiparty system in a democratic country like India.

Ans.

- In a democratic system like India, multiparty politics plays a crucial role in representing the diverse interests and aspirations of the citizens.
- The multiparty system allows for a competitive and dynamic political environment, where parties with different ideologies and agendas can participate and compete for the support of the electorate.
- The presence of multiple parties also provides a check and balance against any one party becoming too powerful and dominant.
- This system allows a variety of interests and opinions to enjoy political representation. People can make a choice between several candidates.
- Through this system different and diverse parties could represent the sections of society and power does not absorb in the hands of one single party. India adopted this system because of the vast diversity and plurality in the nation.

Q. No. 13) Why is it not possible for all the countries of the world to have the same party system, i.e., single, two, or multiparty system?

Ans. It is not possible for all the countries of the world to have the same party system because:

- A party system is not something any country can choose.
- It evolves over a long time depending on the nature of society, its social and regional divisions, its history of politics, and its system of elections.
- Each country develops a party system that is conditioned by special circumstances. No system is ideal for all countries and all situations.

Q. No. 14) a. What is meant by a 'national political party'?

b. State the conditions required to be a national political party.

c. How many national parties are there in India? Name them.

Ans. a. National political parties are country-wide parties. They have units in various states. All these units follow the same policies, programs, and strategy that is decided at the national level.

b. Conditions required to be a national political party are:

4. A party that secures at least 6% of the total votes in Lok Sabha elections or Assembly elections in four states.
5. Wins at least four seats in the Lok Sabha.

c. There were 7 recognized national parties in India in 2019.

- All India Trinamool Congress (AITC)
- Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP)

- Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP)
- Communist Party of India (CPI)
- Communist Party of India – Marxist (CPI-M)
- Indian National Congress (INC)
- Nationalist Congress Party (NCP)

Q. No. 15) What is meant by a regional political party? State the conditions required to be recognized as a ‘regional political party’.

Ans. A regional party is a party that is present in only some states. Regional parties are commonly referred to as ‘State parties’.

Conditions required for a party to be recognized as a regional political party are:

- A party that secures at least 6% of the total votes in an election to the Legislative Assembly of a State
- Wins at least 2 seats in the Legislative Assembly.

Q. No. 16) Evaluate the significant distinction between the national and regional parties.

Ans. The difference between the National parties and the regional Parties are:

5. National parties are powerful in the nation and deal with national issues.
6. Regional parties’ power is limited to a specific region or state, only the issues and demands of a specific region are discussed by regional parties.
7. National parties’ actions offer preference to national issues over regional problems.
8. Regional parties’ operations are confined to the state.

Q. No. 17) Write about the main features of the BJP.

Ans. The main features of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) are:

- Founded in 1980 by reviving the Bharatiya Jana Sangh.
- Wants to build a strong and modern India by drawing inspiration from India’s ancient culture and values, and Deendayal Upadhyaya’s ideas of integral humanism and Antyodaya.
- Cultural nationalism or Hindutva is an important element in its beliefs.
- Wants a uniform civil code for all religions and a ban on religious conversions.
- Is currently the ruling party at the center and a member of the National Democratic Alliance (NDA).

Q. No. 18) Name the national political party which espouses secularism and the welfare of weaker sections and minorities. Mention any four features of that party.

Ans. The national political party which espouses secularism and the welfare of weaker sections and minorities is the Indian National Congress (INC).

The main features of the Indian National Congress (INC) are:

5. It is one of the oldest parties in the world founded in 1885.
6. A centrist party (neither rightist nor leftist) in its ideological orientation, the party espouses secularism and the welfare of weaker sections and minorities.
7. Supports new economic reforms but with a human face.
8. Is a member of the United Progressive Alliance (UPA).

Q. No. 19) Identify the following political parties as national or regional political parties:

- National Conference
- Shiromani Akali Dal
- DMK
- Nationalist Congress Party

- Bharatiya Janata Party
- Shiv Sena
- Forward Block
- Janata Dal (U)
- Rashtriya Janata Dal
- Samajwadi Party

Ans.

- Regional Party
- Regional Party

- National Party
- National Party
- Regional Party
- Regional Party
- Regional Party
- Regional Party
- Regional Party

Q. No. 20) Political parties need to face and overcome a number of challenges in order to remain effective instruments of democracy. Write about such challenges.

Or,

“All over the world, people express their dissatisfaction with the failure of political parties to perform their functions well.” Analyze the statement with arguments.

Ans. Challenges to political parties:

- Lack of internal democracy within parties.
- The challenge of dynastic succession.
- The growing role of money and muscle power in parties, especially during elections.
- Parties do not seem to offer a meaningful choice to the voters.

Q. No. 21) Illustrate the situations which display a lack of internal democracy within a political party.

Ans. Situations that display a lack of internal democracy within a political party are:

- Parties do not keep membership registers, do not hold organizational meetings, and do not conduct internal elections regularly.
- Ordinary members of the party do not get sufficient information on what happens inside the party.
- They do not have the means or the connections needed to influence the decisions. As a result, the leaders assume greater power to make decisions in the name of the party.
- Since one or few leaders exercise paramount power in the party, those who disagree with the leadership find it difficult to continue in the party.
- More than loyalty to party principles and policies, personal loyalty to the leader becomes more important.

Q. No. 22) “Dynastic succession is one of the most serious challenges before the political parties.” Analyze the statement.

Ans. The challenge of dynastic succession is one of the most serious challenges before the political parties because:

- Most parties do not practice open and transparent procedures, hence, there are very few opportunities for an ordinary worker to rise to the top in a party.
- Top leaders favor people close to them or even their family members. In many parties, the top positions are always controlled by members of one family.
- This practice is unfair to other members of that party and is also bad for democracy since people who do not have adequate experience or popular support come to occupy positions of power.

Q. No. 23) Examine the role of money and muscle power among political parties during elections.

Ans. Role of money and muscle power among political parties during elections:

- Since parties are focused only on winning elections, they tend to use shortcuts to win elections.
- They tend to nominate those candidates who have or can raise lots of money.
- Rich people and companies who give funds to the parties tend to have an influence on the policies and decisions of the party.
- In some cases, parties support criminals who can win elections.
- Democrats all over the world are worried about the increasing role of rich people and big companies in democratic politics.

Q. No. 24) “A decline in the ideological differences among parties in most parts of the world has been seen.” Which challenge of a political party is being referred to here? Enumerate some of the features of the identified challenge.

Ans. The challenge being referred to here is the lack of meaningful choices for the voters.

Some of the features of this challenge are:

- In recent years there has been a decline in the ideological differences among parties in most parts of the world.
- They agree on more fundamental aspects but differ only in details on how policies are to be framed and implemented.
- Those who want really different policies have no option available to them.
- Sometimes people cannot even elect very different leaders either, because the same set of leaders keeps shifting from one party to another.

Q. No. 25) Elucidate some of the recent efforts taken in our country to reform political parties and their leaders.

Ans. Some of the recent efforts in India to reform political parties and their leaders are:

- The constitution was amended to prevent elected MLAs and MPs from changing parties. This was done because many elected representatives were indulging in defection in order to become ministers or for cash rewards. Now the law says that if any MLA or MP changes parties, he/she will lose the seat in the legislature.
- The Supreme Court passed an order to reduce the influence of money and criminals. Now, it is mandatory for every candidate who contests elections to file an affidavit giving details of his property and criminal cases pending against them.
- The Election Commission passed an order making it necessary for political parties to hold their organizational elections and file their income tax returns.

Q. No. 26) What do you mean by the term defection? What measures were adopted to prevent this practice?

Ans. Defection in politics means changing party allegiance from the party on which a person got elected (to a legislative body) to a different party.

The constitution was amended to prevent elected MLAs and MPs from changing parties. This was done because many elected representatives were indulging in defection in order to become ministers or for cash rewards. Now the law says that if any MLA or MP changes parties, he/she will lose the seat in the legislature.

However, this has made any dissent even more difficult. MPs and MLAs have to accept whatever the party leaders decide.

Q. No. 27) Suggest and explain any five ways to reform political parties in India.

Ans. Suggestions to reform political parties in India:

- Regulation of party's internal affairs: A law should be made to regulate the internal affairs of political parties. It should be made compulsory for political parties to maintain a register of their members, to follow their own constitution, to have an independent authority, etc.
- Ensure women's participation: It should be made mandatory for political parties to give a minimum number of tickets, about one-third, to women candidates.
- State funding: There should be state funding of elections. The government should give money to parties to support their election expenses to avoid corruption.
- The pressure of public opinion: Political parties can be reformed if people put pressure on them. This can be done through petitions, propaganda, and agitations. Pressure groups and media play an important role in this.
- Public participation: Political parties can improve if those who want to join political parties. The quality of democracy depends on the degree of public participation.

Q. No. 28) Suggest some broad guidelines that can be kept in mind while devising ways and means for political reforms in India.

Ans. Guidelines for political reform:

- Any legal change must carefully look at what results it will have on politics. Sometimes the results may be counter-productive.
- The main focus of political reforms should be on ways to strengthen democratic practice.
- Any proposal for political reforms should think not only about what is a good solution but also about who will implement it and how?

Q. No. 2) State whether true or false

If you consider all democracies and dictatorships for the fifty years between 1950 and 2000, dictatorships have a slightly higher rate of economic growth.

Ans. True.

Q. No. 3) Explain the common features of democracies.

Ans. The following are the common features of democracies:

- Regular elections: In a democratic government, general elections are held to elect a new government.
- Right to vote: All the citizens of the country, of and above a certain age, have the right to vote.
- Political parties: political parties are an essential part of democracy. They put up candidates who contest the election.
- Rule of law: Another common feature of all democracies is that it ensures rule of law. Law is supreme and all citizens are equal in the eyes of law. No one is above the law.

Q. No. 4) What should be the most basic outcome of democracy?

Ans. The most basic outcome of democracy should be:

- Accountable government
- Responsive government.

Q. No. 5) “Democracy is based on the idea of deliberation and negotiation.” Examine the statement.

Ans.

- Democracy gives importance to deliberation and public opinion.
- The democratic government will take more time to follow procedures before arriving at a decision.
- Its decisions may be both more acceptable to the people and more effective.
- Democracy ensures that decision-making will be based on norms and procedures.
- Transparency as persons have the right and the means to examine the process of decision-making.
- It follows procedures and is accountable to the people.
- The democratic government develops mechanisms for citizens to hold the government accountable.
- The democratic government follows mechanisms for citizens to take part in decision-making whenever they think fit.

Q. No. 6) What is meant by transparency?

Ans. The right or means to examine the process of decision-making is called transparency.

Q. No. 7) “A democratic government is efficient and effective.” Analyze the statement.
Or,

“The cost of time that democracy pays is perhaps worth it.” Justify.

Ans.

- Imagine a government that may take decisions very fast. But it may take decisions that are not accepted by the people and may, therefore, face problems.
- In contrast, the democratic government will take more time to follow procedures before arriving at a decision.
- However, because it has followed procedure, its decisions may be more acceptable to the people and more effective. So, the cost of time that democracy pays is perhaps worth it.

Q. No. 8) What are the different ways in which a democracy ensures accountable, responsive, and legitimate government?

Ans.

- A democratic government develops mechanisms for citizens to take part in the decision-making process. For these free and fair elections, open debate on major policies, legislation, and the right to information is there in good democracies. Therefore, democracies are called accountable governments.
- Democracy is a responsive government. It is responsive to the needs and expectations of the citizens. It makes policies for the welfare of the citizens.
- A democratic government is a legitimate government. It is elected by the people and people wish to be ruled by the representatives elected by them.

Q. No. 9) Why is a democratic government referred to as a legitimate government?

Ans.

- A democratic government is called a legitimate government because it is the people's own government.
- There is great popular support for the idea of democracy all over the world.
- People wish to be ruled by representatives elected by them.
- Democratic government is attentive to the needs and demands of the people.

Q. No. 10) "Democracy's ability to generate its own support is itself an outcome that cannot be ignored." Support the statement with examples.

Ans.

- Democracy ensures that decision-making will be based on norms and procedures.
- Every citizen has the right and means to examine the process of decision-making.
- Democratic governments are accountable, legitimate, and transparent governments.
- People have the right to choose their rulers.
- Democracy gives its citizens the right to information about the government and its functioning.
- A democratic government is the people's own government and it is run by the people.

Q. No. 11) How can we measure democracy based on expected outcomes?

Ans. To measure a democracy based on its expected outcomes we have to observe the following practices and institutions:

- In a democracy, there should be free and fair elections.
- There should be open criticism and debate on major policies and legislation.
- Citizens should have the right to information about the functioning of government.

Q. No. 12) What is the relationship between democracy and the economic growth of a country?

Ans. Relationship between democracy and the economic growth of a country:

- During the last 50 years, dictatorships have shown a slightly higher rate of economic growth compared to democracies.
- But many other factors determine the economic growth of a country like – population size, global situation, cooperation from other countries, economic priorities adopted by the country, etc.
- So even when there is a nominal difference in the rate of economic growth between countries under dictatorship and democracy, it is better to prefer democracy as it has several other positive outcomes like dignity and freedom of citizens.

Q. No. 13) Explain the relationship between democracy and development.

Ans. Relationship between democracy and development:

- Democracies are expected to produce development.
- Development depends upon many factors, i.e., the size of the population, global situation, cooperation from other countries, etc. In democracies, time is taken to discuss and reach a decision. So, it is slow, but it is not unjust or inappropriate.

Q. No. 14) ‘There is overwhelming support for the idea of democracy in South Asia.’

Support the statement with examples.

Ans.

- Democratic government is the people's own government.
- Countries from South Asia want democratic rights for people.
- Countries want to elect their representatives by themselves.
- Democracy provides dignity and freedom to its citizens.
- Democracy accommodates social diversity.
- Democracy is based on the idea of discussion and negotiation.
- For example India, Nepal, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, and Pakistan.

Q. No. 15) Differentiate between democratic and non-democratic government.

Ans.

- Democratic governments are transparent, legitimate, and accountable whereas non-democratic governments are selected and formed at their own discretion.
- The democratic government provides dignity and freedom to all without any discrimination.
- Conflicts are resolved through debate, discussions, and negotiation rather than discretion.
- Minority and majority cooperation are common phenomena in the democratic government.
- Enhances the dignity of all without any discrimination.

Q. No. 16) How is Democracy a better form of government when compared with dictatorship or any other alternative government?

Ans. Democracy is a better form of government when compared with dictatorship or any other alternative form of government because it:

6. Promotes equality among citizens.
7. Enhances the dignity of the individual.
8. Improves the quality of decision-making.

9. Provides a method to resolve conflicts.
10. Allows room to correct mistakes.

Q. No. 17) Are democracies based on political and economic equality? Explain.

Or,

Does democracy lead to a reduction of inequality and poverty? Explain.

Ans.

- Democracies are based on political equality and all individuals have an equal role in electing representatives.
- However, parallel to the process of bringing individuals into the political arena, we find growing economic inequalities.
- A small number of ultra-rich enjoy a highly disproportionate share of wealth and incomes, while the poor find it difficult to fulfill their basic needs of life like food, shelter, and clothing.
- The poor constitute a high proportion of our voters and no party would like to lose their votes.
- However, democratically elected governments do not appear to be keen to address the problem of poverty as people may expect.

Q. No. 18) “Democracy accommodates social diversities.” Support the statement with examples.

Ans.

- Democracies develop a procedure to conduct their competition. This reduces the possibility of these tensions becoming explosive or violent.
- No society can fully and permanently resolve conflicts among different groups. But we can certainly learn to respect these differences and can evolve a mechanism to negotiate these differences.
- The ability to handle social differences, divisions, and conflicts is a definite plus point of democratic regimes.
- Example: Belgium has successfully negotiated differences among its ethnic population. This reduces the possibility of tensions.

Q. No. 19) Do democracies lead to peaceful and harmonious life among citizens? Clarify.

Ans. i. Non-democratic regimes often turn a blind eye to or suppress internal social differences. The ability to handle social differences, divisions, and conflicts is thus a definite plus point of democratic regimes.

ii. But, the example of Sri Lanka exhibits that democracy must fulfill two conditions in order to achieve this outcome:

9. Democracy is not simply ruled by majority opinion. The majority always needs to work with the minority so that governments function to represent the general view.
10. Rule by the majority does not become rule by the majority community in terms of religion or race or linguistic group, etc.

Q. No. 20) What are the two conditions necessary to ensure that democracy accommodates social diversity?

Ans.

- It is necessary to understand that democracy is not simply ruled by majority opinion. The majority always needs to work with the minority so that governments function to represent the general view.

- It is also necessary that rule by the majority does not become rule by the majority community in terms of religion or race or linguistic group, etc.
- Rule by majority means that in the case of every decision or in the case of every election, different persons and groups may and can form a majority.

Q. No. 21) 'Respect and equal treatment of women are necessary ingredients of a democratic society.' Examine the statement.

Ans.

9. Economic independence or access to an inherited or self-generated income is considered to be the major means of empowering women.
10. Equal political and civil rights as men.
11. Ways of autonomy and freedom.
12. Distributive justice to reduce inequalities in resources and power.
13. Love, universal brotherhood, sincerity, honesty, integrity of character, and a firm attitude of rendering help.
14. Removing social evils including violence, torture, humiliation, etc.

Q. No. 22) How does democracy assure the dignity of women and prevent caste inequalities?

Or, Explain the message shown in the cartoon below.

Ans.

- In the case of the dignity of women, most societies across the world were historically male-dominated societies.
- Long struggles by women have created some sensitivity today that respect for and equal treatment of women are necessary ingredients of a democratic society.
- That does not mean that women are actually always treated with respect. But once the democratic principle is recognized, it becomes easier for women to wage a struggle against what is now unacceptable legally and morally.
- Democracy in India has strengthened the claim of the disadvantaged and discriminated castes for equal status and equal opportunity.
- There are still instances of caste-based inequalities and atrocities, but these lack moral and legal foundations.

Q. No. 23) Explain any four areas where democracy has failed.

Ans.

- If democracy is expected to produce good government then it is fair to expect that it would also produce development. Evidence shows that many democracies did not fulfill this expectation. The inability of democracy to achieve higher economic development worries us.
- Democracy is a government of the people. Hence one can expect it to reduce economic disparities. But, it is a bitter truth that even when a country achieved economic growth, wealth is not distributed in such a way that all citizens of the country will share and lead a better life.
- Democracy has also failed on the issue of poverty reduction. A smaller number of ultra-rich enjoy a highly disproportionate share of wealth and income. Those at the bottom of society have very little to depend upon. The income has been declining.
- Democracies often frustrate the need of the people and often ignore the demands of the majority of their population. The routing talks of corruption are enough to convince us that democracy is not free of evil.

Q. No. 24) What are the reasonable outcomes that one may expect from democracy?

Ans.

- A democratic government can be expected to be an accountable, responsive, and legitimate government.
- Democracy accommodates social diversity and ensures peace and harmony in society.
- Democracy promotes the dignity and freedom of the individual.

Q. No. 25) Constant complaints by people can be seen as a testimony to the success of democracy. Explain.

Ans.

- Complaints highlight the awareness of the people and their expectations of the system that has been put in place.
- It reflects that citizens are not overawed by those in power and can objectively and critically examine the difference they have made.
- It is a measure of their participation in public debates.
- A public expression of dissatisfaction with democracy shows the success of the democratic project.
- It shows that people have transformed themselves from being subject to being citizens.

Q. No. 26) A think tank has been given the task of designing an outline to measure how successful has democracy been in any country.

Discuss the key indicators that the think tank should consider while designing this outline and explain why these factors are crucial in assessing the outcomes of democracy.

Ans.

- Free and fair elections: this represents a healthy democratic process in place.
- Citizen's right to information: this is important since only after having the right information can the citizens hold the government accountable.

- Protection of minority rights: this represents a strong commitment to democratic principles as this would enable the minority community to participate in the decision-making processes.
- Poverty: reduction in poverty over the years would indicate the successful implementation of democracy.
- Rule of law: presence of institutions like an independent judiciary helps uphold law and ensures fairness, justice, and equal treatment to citizens.
